In quality writing, research should be done professionally so as to produce a paper that is original and not a direct replica of another work or a website's information. Plagiarism greatly costs students and it is advisable to do independent work which relies on your research from reliable materials and websites. The document produced should be comprehensive and one that serves its respective functions. The paper should also be properly edited and proofread before submission to erase possible errors and mistakes, as well as correcting the use of grammar.

To write a quality paper, one needs to present ideas, facts and opinion in a logical way to successfully achieve the purpose of writing the text. The arrangement of ideas should be systematic and the way ideas relate to each other should create cohesion in the text. Formality should be strictly observed in writing of academic material and the use of language should be able to convey the meaning intended with ease.
